DACN originally began with a vision of becoming a seat of excellence in education and took the first modest step in this direction in 1964 with the introduction of Arts and Commerce faculties. Change of time, increasing livability needs around the vicinity and expansion in academic awareness encouraged us to introduce Science faculty in 2000. These aspirations to wear the robes black Coat of rights for justice were provided the right opportunity when DACN merged Law faculty in 1982. To keep pace with time DACN also provided Management Education from 1988 till 1999 when a separate Management Institute was established.

About the Webinar

Use of Mythology-events and characters has been just a decade old phenomenon in Indian English writings. There are various reasons such as socio-political, economic and gender related issues that are brought to fore with a new insight to readers. Such writings not only create an academic discussion but give a new lease of life to the ancient events from the rich treasure of knowledge in the aboriginal culture too. Beyond the aspects of researching the new thing within, a scope-based awareness is also needed for the new academics and research based on it. The resource persons will focus on the theme to deliver valuable content regarding how mythological happenings or occurrences are still relevant.

REPORT ON WEBINAR CONDUCTED BY THE GENDER SENSITIZATION CELL UNDER IQAC

Gender inequality is the social process by which women are not treated as equals. The treatment may arise from distinctions regarding biology, psychology, or cultural norms. Some of these distinctions are empirically-grounded while others appear to be socially constructed. Therefore, Re-defining Gender is not only a fundamental human right, but a necessary foundation for a peaceful and sustainable Development as a social being.
